Passing of Ives (Ivy) J. Bodin Jr. 1939-2017 Rose expert, photographer, and stained glass artist.

Young Ives Bodin

It was with great sadness that we learned of Ivy Bodin's passing. A native of Louisiana, Ivy moved to Vista, CA when he retired, and continued his life-long passion for cultivating, propagating and showing roses. In 1997, Ivy joined the Coastal Rose Foundation and the Carlsbad Arboretum Foundation. Both groups were involved in caring for the Magee House flower beds. Ivy often mentioned that gardening at Magee was magical. It combined everything that he enjoyed-rose gardening and art. As a stained glass artist, Ivy loved the use of color, and its combinations. With this in mind, he used roses as his palette to create a magical place. In conjunction with the Coastal Rose Society, over 130 modern and Old World roses were planted around Magee House. Ivy chose roses for his Old Garden beds to demonstrate the vast variety the rose world can offer. Ivy's efforts paid off, as the rose gardens at Magee House gained recognition in 2002, when Carlsbad was named an American Rose City by the American Rose Society. Next time you are at Magee House, take a minute to enjoy our beautiful rose gardens, which are currently in full bloom, and think of Ivy.

The Carlsbad Logo

In 1958, the city held a contest to design a city seal, with a prize of $25 awarded to the winner. Major Albert F. Rinehart's design won. It incorporated several symbols that the City Council thought best represented the City of Carlsbad.

The hatchet in the triad is a longtime symbol of democratic government.

The three elements around the triad represent features that make Carlsbad a uniquely delightful place to live.

At the top, the sun and sea represent the great climate and coastal location.

At the bottom right is a cornucopia, which symbolizes the many food crops once grown in Carlsbad.

Planning has begun to celebrate the 50th anniversary of the Carlsbad City Library and Georgina Cole building located on Carlsbad Village Drive (Previously Elm St.). By the early 1960s, it was obvious that the recently created city library system was over-crowded. Adult and Children's library services were located in separate buildings and this created a need for one large library to join collections.

Opposition to the library bond for construction of a new building was overcome when The Friends of the Carlsbad Library manned the phones and hit the streets talking to their neighbors and friends. The new library opened in 1967 and is now known as the Georgina Cole Library in honor of the first library director. Events will be held in November and December, and will include a historical exhibit.

Donations

The Oceanside Historical Society donated to us a large box containing photo negatives taken during the 1940s and 50s from Detwiler Photo Studios. We are processing the photos, having them developed and identified and archived. Below are a few that we found particularly interesting.

Bressi Ranch late 1940s

Royal Palms Inn- current site of Carlsbad Inn Beach Resort/ Norte Restaurant

Refugio Rochin, PhD., former Carlsbad resident, recently donated many items of interest from his days as a student in Carlsbad, including a collection of Army Navy Academy memorabilia, Boy Scouts of America pins and medals, Carlsbad High Letterman letters, photos, and other items documenting his family's history as business owners and residents in Carlsbad.

Carlsbad to Hire lifeguards For Northern Beach

The City will hire lifeguards for the first time in its history, to patrol between the north end of the Seawall (Pine Avenue) and the border with Oceanside (Buena Vista Lagoon). The rest of Carlsbad's beaches are managed by the State. The City Council in mid-April approved spending up to $300, 000 for lifeguards and paramedics. This action is in part in response to a drowning that occurred in that area last summer.

Carlsbad Will Change From Citywide To District Elections

Wednesday, May 10, 2017 By Alison St. John

The Carlsbad City Council becomes the third North County city council to vote this year to move to district elections for city council members. The council voted Tuesday night to make the change.

The move from at-large, city-wide elections to district elections comes as the result of a legal threat from a Malibu-based attorney, Kevin Shenkman, who threatened to sue the city if it did not comply with the California Voting Rights Act.

Survival of Turtles 250 Million years ago

A new study reported last year by Science News suggests that the shells of turtles, instead of serving as armor, was developed as an aid in burrowing. Turtles survived a mass extinction that occurred about 250 Million years ago, and the last extinction of the dinosaurs 65 Million years ago. Sea turtles, however, may have had an easier time.
